FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

From Shy Camper to SpringHill President: A Childhood Journey Inspires New Children's Book

Written for children ages 7–11, Molly Goes to Camp shares SpringHill President Molly Ramseyer's true story to help children find courage and parents explore what one week at camp could inspire.

EVART, Mich. (November 5, 2026) — Is your child ready for overnight camp? And are you ready to let them go?

For many parents, sending a child to camp for the first time comes with a mix of excitement and uncertainty. Will they make friends? Will they be homesick? Will they have the courage to try something new?

SpringHill President Molly Ramseyer knows what it's like to be that child. Long before she became the leader of the Christian camping ministry, she was a shy young girl heading off to summer camp, unsure of what awaited her.

Now, her childhood experiences have inspired Molly Goes to Camp, a new children's chapter book written by Luke Morris and illustrated by Abbie Glenn.

Based on Molly's true story, the book follows a young girl as she overcomes worries, makes new friends, and discovers the courage to embrace new adventures. Its central lesson is that courage doesn't mean never being afraid. Sometimes, it means taking the next step and trusting that Jesus is always near.

"I am sharing my story for the child who's a little nervous about camp, and the parent who's a little nervous about letting go," said Ramseyer.

For Molly, those early camp experiences helped build confidence, deepen her faith, and open the door to possibilities she couldn't yet imagine. Years later, her journey brought her back to SpringHill, where she now serves as president.

"At SpringHill, we say a week up here shapes a lifetime out there. I know that's true because I've lived it. I never could have imagined where those early camp experiences would lead me. Now, I get to help create those same opportunities for the next generation," said Ramseyer.

A Story for Children and the Parents Who Love Them

Written for children ages 7–11, Molly Goes to Camp offers families a way to talk about the excitement and uncertainty of trying something new.

Through Molly's adventures, young readers can begin to imagine themselves at camp, making new friends, discovering what they're capable of, and growing in confidence and faith.

For parents, the book offers a reminder that sometimes the experiences that take our children beyond their comfort zones are the very ones that help them grow.

Not every child who attends camp will become a camp president. But every child has a story worth shaping.

Imagine how camp could inspire your child.

A Special Invitation for Summer 2027

To celebrate the release of Molly Goes to Camp, SpringHill is offering families a special opportunity to begin their own camp story.

Register for Summer 2027 by December 8, 2026, and receive:

- $100 off summer camp registration with coupon code MOLLY100.
- A complimentary printed copy of Molly Goes to Camp, mailed to the address provided with your summer camp registration.

Whether your child is counting the days until camp or still finding the courage to try, Molly's story is a wonderful place to begin.

Explore Summer 2027 camp opportunities and register by December 8:

https://springhillexperiences.com/molly-goes-to-camp/

Discover Molly Goes to Camp

Written by Luke Morris and illustrated by Abbie Glenn, Molly Goes to Camp is a children's chapter book based on the real-life childhood experiences of SpringHill President Molly Ramseyer.

The book is recommended for children ages 7–11 and is available for purchase on Amazon in the formats listed on its product page.

Find Molly Goes to Camp on Amazon.

About SpringHill

Founded in 1969, SpringHill is a Christian camping ministry based in Evart, Michigan. Through summer camps, retreats, and life-impacting experiences, SpringHill exists to glorify God by creating experiences that enable young people to know Jesus Christ and grow in their relationship with Him. To learn more, go to www.SpringHillExperiences.com.

Media Contact

Kimberlee Mitchell